However, at that time Erin chose to shift her focus from competitive sports to pursuing the ten years of higher education required to achieve her life-long dream of becoming an orthodontist. In 2008 she graduated from Villanova University with a Bachelor of Science Degree. Erin studied at Temple University's dental school for six more years and earned a Doctor of Dental Medicine Degree, a Master's Degree in Oral Biology, and an Orthodontic Certificate.

Dr. Erin Bauerle is now a board-certified orthodontist and practices in Ardmore and Havertown Pennsylvania. She helps children and teens achieve ideal dental health and smiles. She loves her job! She enjoys those patients visiting the office wearing their team uniforms and practice gear.

Erin lives in Havertown with her husband Tom Homsher (a fellow Villanova grad) and children Nora (6 years old) and Shane (4 years old). She continues to play tennis and strength trains on a weekly basis and bikes and skis at each opportunity. She thanks her family, especially her parents, for their unwavering support; and coaches and teammates who inspired her along the way. She credits her experience as a CB West student athlete for developing skills of time management, discipline, teamwork, leadership and perseverance.
